The Prelude

Our story concerns the families of the eight daughters of William Lloyd and Margred Roberts. The vital statistics of the family before William and Margred courtesy of Lloyd S. Hughes of Salt Lake City from the Welsh records is as follows: The dates being christening, not birth dates.

- 1 JOHN PRICHARD m. Ellen Roberts April 3, 1717, so the family name traced into Wales is Prichard, who was Margred Roberts Lloyd's great, great, grandfather, the tenth generation from John Prichard is represented by eight youngsters: Kathleen Sudgen, L'Dean Walleen, Elizabeth Giesert, Amanda Lee Frantz, Melissa Averyt, the twins, Christine and Mary Anne Carter and the only boy, Bruce Brown, born this year our our Lord, nineteen hundred fifty nine. John and Ellen Prichard's daughter was.
 - 2 JANE PRICHARD c. August 17, 1720, Lanfachraeth, Anglesey North Wales, m. Richard Jones, d. August 1781 Ty Cross ANW. Their daughter was;
 - 3 CATHERINE JONES c. April 24, 1755 Ty Cross, ANW, d. Aug. 1832 at Aberelow ANW. Catherine m. 6/13/1774 JOHN ROBERTS, the son of Hugh Roberts. John was christened April 21, 1746 at Renydie ANW d. 1816 at Aberelow, ANW. Their son was;
 - 4 ROBERT ROBERTS c. April 28, 1775, Ty Cross Llanfachraeth ANW, married Ann Hughes October 9, 1802. The daughter of Robert and Ann was;
 - 5 MARGRED ROBERTS c. March 9, 1808, Llonyghedi, Shirton North Wales, d. May 20, 1855 at Cambria, Wisconsin, m. April 4, 1830 to
- WILLIAM LLOYD c. 1808 Llanyeshy, Anglesey, North Wales d. May 4, 1877 at Cambria, Wisconsin. Both William and Margred are buried at Cambria. Her inscription, in Welsh reads: Er Off A.M. Margred Gwaig William Loyd Ye Bon A Amwyd Yn Llanyghedi Shirton A Fy Faiw May 20, 1855 Yr 47 Oed. Also in Welsh the 21st v. Psalm 18 and 24:44 Matthew "I have kept the ways of the Lord, and have not wickedly departed from my God." "Therefore be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

William Lloyd

With a great deal of pride and and equal amount of humbleness the statistics of the Lloyd family are presented . . . pride, because of the marvelous co-operation the entire family has shown . . . and humbleness, for in this endeavor the omissions may be more important than the contents . . . that without the letters of Hugh J. Hughes, without the research of Grace Davis Jones and Hugh in the 20's . . . without the financial backing of Lloyd Hardie, L. D. "Dee" Lloyd, Nell Jones, Roland Pugh, Zenas Williams, and Blodwyn Thomas . . . without the patience of Ethel Jones Devenport who spent three years compiling statistics . . . and without your help in locating photographs, checking dates, and answering letters the efforts of Phillips Hall, our printer, would have been entirely fruitless.

William was a contractor of considerable ability, and he was the driving power in the move from Wales to America. His last job in Wales was the Holyhead terminal station that still is in use. Margred was always homesick and longed for the wooded hills and verdant valleys of Wales. In 1933 Hugh J. Hughes located a picture of Margaret at Cambria and was unable to possess it. Bernard and Blodwyn Thomas failed to find it in 1959. They do report: "William, Mary and their son are also buried here. The cemetery was started in 1873, no doubt Margred's body was "raised" and reburied here. The memorial stone is weather-worn and moss-covered, Cambria in 1855 consisted of one house. An old-

1. ANNA LLOYD

b. Holyhead, Wales, 1830 m. James McIntyre, d. 1870. Margaret and Adaline both born at Milwaukee. Anna and James buried there.

Anna was a strict disciplinarian, like her mother, she had a job for every member of the household and the tasks were done thoroughly and beautifully. Margred had a dutch oven in Wales and did community baking, banking William's wages and ran the household from the 'oven money' and Anna was chief baker. Margred allowed no Sunday work or Sunday cooking, and all the daughters continued this Sunday observance. Anna was a seamstress of high calibre, as the sampler dated 12/25/1877, made for Jane testifies. It is now property of R. E. Hardie of Sturgis, South Dakota.

11 MARGARET ANNA MC INTYRE

10/24/1854-12/31/1902 m. at Galesville, Wisc., 4/12/1873 to Maurice Amer Wesley Clare 11/19/1847-10/5/1931. Both buried at Milwaukee. Children born at Winnetoon, Nebraska.

Margaret, also called Ann attended Milwaukee schools and Galesville Seminary where she met and married Maurice Clare. They homesteaded 360 acres of land west of Winnetoon, Nebraska. Maurice taught school each winter leaving Ann to face the tasks of the farm and household. It was not easy for the five foot, one hundred pound frontier woman who gave birth to ten children. Four died in infancy and two with diptheria. In 1888 they moved to Niobrara, Nebraska where Maurice was County Superintendent. They were loyal Methodist church people, both sincere, dedicated Christians, Ann a tireless and ardent W.C.T.W. supporter.

- Most of the Clare family are in California, and have never seen their Lloyd cousins. Rev. Maurice Clare has spent his life in service in the Burma mission field, and when he reached retirement age, insisted on still another tour of duty and served with distinction. His correspondence with the compilers of this book has been a wonderful experience for us---and most helpful!

timer pointed out where William Lloyd ill-fated 'hop' farm was located. That venture broke him when the brewery market for hops collapsed." After Margred' death William married a lady of German lineage, against the wishes of the grown daughters. They never spoke of the marriage or of the half brother, William Lloyd II. "Mary, the second wife," writes Hugh, "was a fine woman, thrifty and courteous and made Lloyd a fine home." After Mary's death, William II, according to Grace, "sold the property and invested in a team and wagon. He returned sans team, sans wagon, and without funds, lived a 'hobo' life and later served in the Spanish-American war. He became a pensioner at the state soldiers home and was buried with full military honors at Cambria." Hugh adds this gem: "William II was improvident, mentally capable only of tasks like the grave-digging he did, and which he did very well." "Children were afraid of William Lloyd II", continues Blodywn, "he was the town tramp. Could he be related to us!"

Lloyd, the name, is of Celtic origin, meaning 'grey' as to color of skin and complexion. It was used in Wales to distinguish between the dark-skinned offspring of Caesar's Roman legions who retreated into the Hills of Wales before the tide of the Norman Conquest on the one hand and the fair-hair sons of the Norsemen on the other hand. Lloyd is exclusively a Welsh surname.

Thomas, Robert, John and Grace

Margaret and Richard Lewis

Margaret was a faithful member of the Welsh church, a very conscientious Christian, she never questioned what 'her share' of the work was. Rev. Richard Davis, who accompanied the Lloyds from Wales, officiated at her marriage. Richard was a member of the legislature, and farmed near Judson, Minnesota.

Roberts, meaning the son of Robert, also has a conotation of "fame" and "bright". It is found profusely in Scotland as well as Wales, as a baptismal name as well as surname.

Davis, Lewis, Harris, Jones, Hughes, Williams are the Welsh way of establishing identity . . . the son of David, son of John, etc. Whiting is English, probably formed as son of White. McIntyre and Hardie are Scotch clan names, McIntyre, is translated "son of a carpenter", Hardie is a variant of MacHardy meaning 'hard ground'.

Except where mentioned, surnamed are unconnected as far as limited research has shown.

The given name Margred is in excellent Welsh taste, coming in that form from the Celtic name Mairghread.

Statistics like the Bible story of creation sometimes have more than one version, and necessarily our choice sometime was a compromise of our source material. It was difficult not to "point with pride" to outstanding achievement of the Lloyd Sisters' grandchildren, but to do so would take all enjoyment out of continuing this history by someone of the next generation. Ranks of our career military men are given but no mention is made of the men and women who were "GIs" in our late wars.

The ministry, and the armed services are well represented with Lloyd family members, as are the skilled trades and white-collar executives, but the men of the soil are in the vast majority . . . farmers, ranchers, dairymen and cattle feeders . . . take one of these and you'll have Mr. Average Lloyd!

Owen E. Roberts, commonly called "Uncle Roberts" was a brother of Margred Roberts Lloyd. He came to America in 1868 and his family grew up in the Cambria area. His children:

Elizabeth and Hugh Harris made their home in Milwaukee. Hugh was a shoemaker and owned a shop in downtown Milwaukee. He did custom work for a select clientele. The individual shoemaker has departed from the American scene, but Hugh saw it in its heyday, and was a craftsman of ability.

b. 2/6/1867 at Sparta m. 3/26/1890 at Sparta to Edward Lewis Pugh (6/12/1861-8/24/1944)
d. 1/5/1950 at Columbus. Both buried at Ixonia, Rowland born at Sparta, other at Ixonia, Wisc.

Hugh Hughes, who was sometimes called 'Jonnie Whiting'. Jane also made her home at the Whitings from the time she was fifteen until married. "It is sufficient to say that they did for me all that parents could possibly have done for a son." H.J.H.

"She looks well to the ways of her household, and does not eat the bread of idleness. Her children rise up and call her blessed."

Miriam and Rowland

Miriam and Rowland farmed at Coles Valley. They were very religious parents and reared their family that way. They were also the best of neighbors, lending seed to less fortunate neighbors, and sharing work with them. They were conservative and retired in financial ease. Rowland died of a kidney ailment, so Miriam moved to Sparta, built a lovely home.
In 1906 Miriam fell and broke her hip and was a helpless cripple the last 20 years. "Nell" lived with and cared for her mother all this time, not marrying until after Miriam's death.

Miriam Jones Pugh

Myrt and Ed lived on the Pugh farm at Ixonia, later on their own 120 acres that they purchased in 1901. They moved to Watertown in October 1923. Both were expert skaters, Ed ran a threshing rig, was president of Ixonia State Bank, ruling elder and treasurer of Presbyterian Church. Visiting pastors always knew they were welcome at Myrt's table. The boys are farmers; Blodwyn has a banker for a husband.

Father was a fine Christian gentleman and in my mind's eye he is kneeling in the front pew at church, pouring out prayers for us all. He always started "the day the Lord made" with family prayers before he turned to the labor of the day. He was happy with his family and with his neighbors. Dad and Mother farmed until 1919, then moved to Sparta.---E.J.D.

"Whatever thy hand findeth to do . . . do it with all thy might"

Ethel and Earl

Ethel stayed with her grandmother and her Aunt Nell while attending high school at Sparta. Earl was a buttermaker finally locating at West Bend, Wisc., as owner of his own creamery. Roger and Douglas are the present owners. Ethel now lives in a lovely new residence at Tomah. Mildred and her husband are part of the creamery operation at West Bend, Elaine was a WAVE during the war and had quite an exciting brush with the FBI, but let her tell it.

William Ed Jones

Ed was a highly respected citizen and industrious farmer in the Coles Valley area.

"I know Jesus as a true and wonderful Companion."

"My life has been varied" says the handsome, six-foot-plus Roland Jones, above with Cora. 40 years in North Dakota farming, a bank cashier, collector for banks, shipyard worker and land appraiser for Federal Land Bank---that's variety! Roland and Cora are Presbyterian, he's a 32nd degree Mason and Shriner.

Everyone imposed on "Nell" and that's what she wanted them to do. She raised two families in her lovely home that is filled with treasures, and when a nephew or niece came to Sparta to school their was no question about it--- they lived with "Nell".

Ezra and Prudence, above, spent their entire life in the Sparta community. His work, as well as his hobby was directly connected with livestock and the livestock industry. He owned farms and actively managed them. He sold and shipped cattle to all parts of the country. The family is Congregational.

Abide In Me

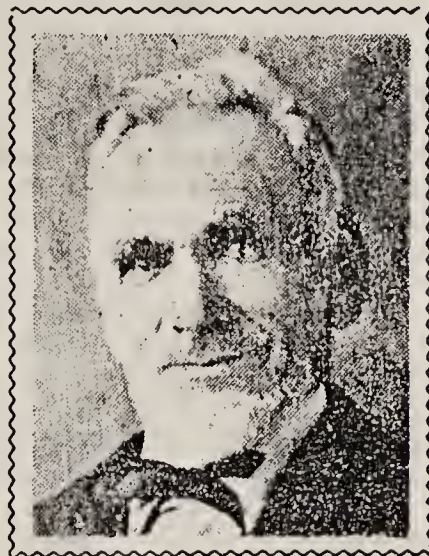

Jennie Lloyd Hardie (1879)

Oh blessed refuge, when the storm of life,
Beats ruthlessly on our unsheltered head
How sweet, above the clamor and the strife
To hear the calm still voice of Him who said
"Abide in Me".

"Abide"---forever, and forever find
A safe and sure retreat, thou needst not roam
One moment from thy rest: but rather bind Thy love still close and closer to thy home.
"Abide in Me".

"In me . . ." the Mighty One, and strong to save,
Who only from thy sins can set thee free.
Aye, death and hell and Satan and the grave Thou needst not fear if this thy refuge be.
"Abide in Me".

That blessed shelter grant, Oh Christ, to be The portion of each heart now burdened sore, Bless Thy dear Name; Thy promises I see.
Help them and me that we may evermore Abide in Thee.

James and Margaret Hardie

The Hardie Clan

The MacHardy heiress of Invercauld, head of the clan, married the Farquharson chieftain, and in 1595 a Farquharson heiress married a MacKintosh and the clans of McHardy-Farquharson and MacKintosh combined with a document signed at Invercauld, the MacHardy fortress. They were "out" in the first Jacobite uprising of 1715, but were "in" in 1745 when "Colonel Anne" led the clan for "Bonnie Prince Charles" and her husband Angus MacKintosh fought on the side of Hanover.

In a moment of glory, according to the clan folk-lore six Farquharsons under Anne routed 1500 English at Moy, and as a reward they dropped the "Mac" from their names because "they had their own personal glory and needed not to be known as "son of" any living man," hence the names: Clark, Elder, Glenn, Hardie, Lyon; all Farquharson clansmen. The first part is probably true, since it well established and often mentioned, the later part pure conjecture, for these six names were well established before Prince Charles arrived on the scene.

The Farquharson plaid is green and blue with small yellow and red stripes, their crest a lion issuing from a wreath with a sword in his dexter paw. Eventually they joined the Clan Chattan which has headquarters today in London.

James Hardie 5/15/1829-2/25/1908 m. in Scotland to Margaret Bibby 8/24/1824-2/6/1888. Came to America on sailing vessel about 3/1/1852. Worked in the coal mines in Maryland a couple of years, then came to La Crosse, Wisconsin and settled at Hardies Creek near Glasgow, Wisconsin in 1854. James was a charter member of First Presbyterian Church, Glasgow, Wisc. So were John and Richard Bibby, brothers of Margaret, and their wives,

- Mary McMillan Bibby and Mary Faulds Bibby. The Bibby families came to America with the Hardie family, and possibly the father of the Bibby's, and a half brother, name unknown. Mother Bibby elected to stay in Scotland, according to family folk-lore. Margaret Bibby Hardie joined the church 2/12/1860, the same date their daughter, Mary, was baptised.

Jane and Robert

Jane, her Scotch husband called her Jeannie, and she signed her name Jennie, went to live with Ann Lloyd McIntyre until she was thirteen. Jane considered Anna a hard taskmistress and there was little mutual love. Jane taught school before and after marriage. Children, poverty, unhappiness and hard work failed to dampen her spirit, unselfish to the point of selfishness, widely read and expressed herself fluently. Robert Hardie, son of James Hardie and Margaret Bibby, both born near Glasgow, Scotland, came to U. S. 1850, resided at Galesville, Wisc. Jane boarded at their home while teaching. After marriage they made their home at Spring Valley, Minnesota for 5 years, moving to homestead at Mellette, So. Dak. 1881. Robert was educated at Uni of Wisconsin and Wesleyan Methodist, at Wasioja, and ordained. He was president of Wesleyan Methodist Conference, So. Dakota 1884-1906. Jane was killed in a runaway when returning from a prayer meeting.

There is a great deal of material in the South Dakota Historical Society at Pierre dealing with Robert and Jeanie. A schoolboy Washington Day address, a sermon on Acts 17:11, by Robert, their marriage license; several short stories, "Correct Judgment", "Old Reliable", "The Plans of God Never Fail," by Jeanie; and part of her diary.

"April 24, 1881: Alice will be four and Gracie a year and a half old, Grace is such a good baby in every sense of the word that can be applied to a baby.
Alice was willful and often fitful, but with such a depth of affection. . . "

" . . . June 28th, 1882, Wednesday, quarter to six P. M. Six years ago this evening at nine Robert and I were married in the chapel of Wasioja seminary. It was Wednesday and a day very much like this. I wore white dotted mull trimmed with white ribbon and blush roses. I had taught school all day and was tired.
Today, Robert has been fixing up the cellar to our newly-built house on this homestead to which we came from Spring Valley . . "

The Jane Lloyd picture on page 14 was sent by the family of Albert W. Caman after his death.
It was presented to him, one of her pupils, on the last day of the first school term she taught. Her age, fifteen.

The Christ Child

Hugh J. Hughes

The Star of Hope the shepherds saw
Two thousand years ago
Now fills the orbit of the earth
With Love's immortal glow;
And year by year the shadows wane
Within the hearts of men
And every Christmas brings again
The song of Bethlehem.

O Christ Child, in a manger born,
Be Thou our guest today!

Beneath the banners of the Child
The Truth is waxen strong, Above His armies echoes still
The angels' midnight song;
The Lord of Life that rules today
High over king and thrall
Is He who once an infant lay Within the oxen's stall.

O Christ Child, in a manger born,
Be near us when we pray!

Wherever in our hearts and homes,
Are love and service blent, Lo, there again the Christ Child comes
To spend and to be spent.
Above us still His white Star shines
And wise men humbly pray
To Him who came to Mary's arms
On that first Christmas day.

O Christ Child, in a manger born,
Be Thou our guest alway!

Author of "Leather Hinges", poems and short stories, editor of farm publications, Hugh J. Hughes was secretary of the Great Lakes St. Lawrence Seaway project in its formative years. A project that is now completed in 1959, fifteen years after his death. The commemorative stamp is used on the mailing envelope. The compilers of this Lloyd family book lifted a great deal of material from his letters to his children for this edition. A brilliant scholar, a keen observer of the American scene, Hugh was extremely proud of his Lloyd family heritage. He visited our Nebraska home several times and those occasions called for all-night sessions with this fluent and sometimes caustic cousin.

Sarah Ellen

David Williams

Sarah became the charge of her sister, Grace, at age two upon her mother's death. She had an excellent home, and a fine man and woman to take the places of her parents, so I feel that we owe much to the Davis' for the many kindness they have shown down through the years. After her husband Hughes' death she spent a summer in Vermont. She was hired as nurse to two little girls of wealthy Milwaukee parents. Sarah was very intelligent, and a fine mother. She was also a tailor and had a millinery shop in Mankato, during her 8 years of widowhood. She married David Williams of Utica, New York and they found much hardship in homesteading in the Dakota territory. David was an artificer in Co. A 10th Volunteer Heavy Artillery of the Civil War. Actually Sarah pioneered in three states---Wisconsin, Minnesota and Dakota!

Albert

Minnie

Albert had a flair for the spectacular . . . but let a daughter tell it . . . the first time mother saw dad he rode into town on a snow white horse, black saddle, and silver trapping. There was talk that in his younger days he rode for the Cattlemen's Association, that he used to break broncos as a cover-up for investigation. He used to sing in the Welsh choir at St. Paul, he wrote lovely poems and could draw. Mother was teaching when they met at church.

He was a carpenter-contractor, traveled a great deal in his work, and some of our fine American buildings are the product of his handiwork.

Hugh J. Hughes' story "Leather Hinges" was an attempt to portray the hard life in 1850 on the frontier. The heroine, Ann, was a composite character of all the Lloyd girls, but Alice Hardie Hall always contended it was her mother, Jennie Lloyd.

The Roberts lived across from Carnavon Castle at Holyhead Anglesey, North Wales. Anglesey is an island at the extreme north-western corner of Wales and Holyhead on the tip of the island pointing into the Irish Sea. The first Prince of Wales, Edward II was born here in 1282 as a political concession to the turbulent Welsh. The Roberts were well to do. Holyhead is the birthplace of David Lloyd (adopted surname George) the British prime minister. No relationship has been established. Both Margred and William made "x" for their signature on the Welsh birth certificates that were furnished us by Lloyd S. Hughes. They came to America on the sailing vessel "Forest Queen" and settled first at Milwaukee and later at the Welsh settlement at Cambria.

"Mother and father had four boys besides we eight girls, all died in infancy except one, Robert, who lived to be about four. He died on the way here from Wales and is buried at Syracuse, New York." Sarah Lloyd Williams, courtesy of Grace Williams Olsson. (The Syracuse records have been destroyed by fire.)

The Celtic Cross has been a symbol of the Reformed Churches since the fifth century, A. D. The cross itself stands for Christ, the circle for eternal life "without beginning . . . without end." To the early Celtic Christian it stood for "Christ with me always." The Southern Cross at Monasterbice, erected 1000 A. D. is in our Lloyd window on the front-piece. Design by Phillips R. Hall.

Composition of this book by Phillips S. Hall in the shop of Roger Goodenough, his boss; engraving by Norval Kohler, presswork by Kenneth Maschmaier, and bindery work by Miss Bernice Spiker. Body type is eight-point Regal with eight-point Gothic in side columns. Headlines are ten-point Century and fourteen-point Sparton.

Cover stock is leather embossed 139; inside pages printed on Lynnfield Embossed Wedgwood Offset Enamel, 90; ink used is IPI Speed King brown.

Margaret

David and Clara

David attended the University of Wisconsin taking a course in agriculture. He was superintendent of Certified Dairy Farms in Wisconsin and Illinois for many years, then in 1930 became a real estate broker. Big game hunting in Canada with his brother Zenas was his hobby. In 1947, blindness followed a serious automobile accident . . . but he went right on with his business in spite of this handicap, an worthy example for the rest of us.

87 SADIE ADELINE WILLIAMS

3/29/1888 m. at Lake Forest, Ill. 10/3/1911 to James Sugden 5/21/1885-12/9/1956. Sadie lives with Kenneth on the home place, Mukwonago.
Sadie and James farmed in the Mukwonago, community, and the undertone of the letters with their children is one of deep reverence and family love. Sadie didn't spare the rod as this cousin can testify from personal experience when he ran afoul of her just and wise authority.
I love her for it. P.S.II.

Grace Mary Williams

Senator Axel

Axel and Grace farmed in Minnesota for a while, but when the western part of North Dakota was opened for homesteading they located at Parshall. It is dry-land farming with up and downs. Grace is greatly interested in her church and WCTU. Axel served as state representative in 1936 and was elected state senator in 1938 . . .
and farms 640 acres.

On Sunday is my favorite pew
I feel as one with God,
With others, who like I,
The Path, to church have trod.

The blessed hymns, solemn prayers
Bring quiet to my soul,
Which for a long restless week,
Has striven for a goal.

I thank Thee God, for one short Hour out of many in a week
When I can sit in quiet peace Thy will, for me, to seek.
